PRE-REQUISITES

Pre-requisite: JRN 1000 and JRN 2000

SYNOPSIS

This course provides students with an introduction to the world of broadcast news. Students will learn about radio news and current affairs in Australia and overseas. The course will take a hands-on approach to teaching students how to write, report, prepare and present radio news under 'real life' deadlines. Students will also learn to think independently, refine their news sense, operate within the community as journalists and make ethical decisions. Topics covered include: the history of radio journalism, writing for broadcast, interviewing techniques, voice production, and editorial decision-making.

OBJECTIVES

On successful completion of this course the student should:

- demonstrate an understanding of the major news events of the previous 15 weeks, in particular, how these events were handled by the broadcast media;
- have an understanding of the role of the broadcast media in fostering public awareness of social issues and problems;
- demonstrate an awareness of the discipline needed to meet the pressure of coping with tight broadcast news deadlines;
- be able to isolate major news stories and to justify their possible inclusion in the front section of a metropolitan or regional radio station news bulletin;
- be able to write radio news stories based on his/her experience gained from exercises completed in tutorials and workshops, his/her own research material and interviews on local issues;

- be able to interview and produce stories with recorded material.
