RATIONALE

Community consultation and development has rapidly become the principal approach by which organisations are strategically and responsively managing and coordinating their business affairs. The demand for expertise in this area is high at present and this is predicted to continue into the future with the ongoing expansion of democratisation in modern communities.

SYNOPSIS

This course introduces students preparing to enter professional contexts to contemporary communication management strategies and techniques used in community development and consultation. Students will develop practical and conceptual skills in relation to the trends, issues and processes involved in project planning and implementation, and the building of social capital through community consultation, network facilitation and collaborative action.

OBJECTIVES

On successful completion of this course students will be able to:

- demonstrate an informed awareness of the broad context in which social processes, particularly community consultation, development and planning occur;

- demonstrate an understanding of the modern developments in democracy (including organisational) in relation to their influence on community participation and consultation in government and corporate sector planning;
- demonstrate an understanding of the core communicative skills and organisational planning competences required for executing community consultation activities;
- demonstrate an understanding of the key procedures used in conducting community consultation and development projects;
- evaluate a range of prominent methodological issues and complexities involved in conducting community consultation;
- apply procedural writing methods used for documenting, reporting and evaluating community consultation and participation projects.
