SYNOPSIS

This course approaches the study of law from the perspective of problems faced by managers. That is, it examines the laws relevant to areas for which a manager may be responsible, such as employment relations. It not only requires students to understand the law on the topics selected but also to appreciate the risk management and compliance steps to be taken by management in response. Students may better appreciate this course if they take it towards the end of their studies.

OBJECTIVES

Completion of this course should enable students to:

1. understand the obligations and potential liabilities imposed by law on persons involved in the marketing of goods and services;
2. identify the sources of legal obligations governing employment contracts and understand the duties that employers and employees owe each other;
3. have a broad overview of the notions of proprietary interests and be able to articulate the ways in which a manager might protect property interests;
4. identify which business practices are illegal or require approval under Australian competition law and appreciate the consequences of contravention;
5. appreciate the legal matters affecting business relationships with government and issues of compliance;
6. acquire a basic understanding of the ways in which managers can work best within the legal environment and their legal advisers; and
7. demonstrate effective communication skills concerning the topics studied.
