SYNOPSIS

This course introduces students to the theory that is integral to financial accounting practice. Using established accounting theories, the factors or incentives that exist for preparers of financial reports are investigated. These factors require consideration when making financial reporting decisions or evaluating the decisions of others. The primary objective of this course is to enhance students' awareness of the issues surrounding decision making in relation to financial reporting practice. This includes an investigation of the popular theories and evidence in regard to financial reporting. The financial reporting issues addressed include the choice of accounting methods, voluntary disclosures, environmental performance reporting and the regulation of financial reporting.

OBJECTIVES

The course objectives define the student learning outcomes for a course. The assessment item(s) that may be used to assess student achievement of an objective are shown in parentheses after each objective. On successful completion of this course, students should be able to:

1. demonstrate effective written communication skills to a tertiary academic standard (as specified in Communication skills handbook for accounting) (assignment 1, assignment 2, examination)
2. demonstrate the ability to undertake independent research outside the prescribed course materials and communicate those research findings in assessment tasks (assignment 1, assignment 2)
3. explain how the development and application of accounting theories enhances decision making in accounting and identify the factors to consider when making or evaluating those decisions (assignment 1, assignment 2, examination)

4. critically evaluate conceptual framework projects and different accounting models with respect to the fundamental problem of financial reporting (assignment 1, assignment 2, examination)
5. evaluate the influence of accounting information on investor behaviour and share prices using the empirical evidence from capital markets research (assignment 2, examination)
6. outline, apply and evaluate the accounting theories that are used to explain and predict accounting practices (assignment 2, examination)
7. outline the contribution that behavioural research has made towards understanding the role of accounting information and the influence of accounting information on behaviour and decision processes (assignment 2, examination)
8. assess the construction and application of accounting theories from an ethical perspective (assignment 2, examination)
9. critically evaluate each of the accounting theories and research methods covered in this course and make a determination as to their usefulness to accounting practice (examination)
10. apply the insights gained from the theories and evidence presented in this course to the issue of whether the reporting of accounting information should be regulated (examination).

No extension will be granted if an extension is applied for after the due date of the assignment, eg, a request for an extension included with the late assignment will not be granted. (iv) Students must use their name as the file name for the assignment and ensure that the document is adequately named for identification purposes. (v) The Examiner will not accept submission of assignments by facsimile or email. Students are to note on the first page of the assignment document the date of the public holiday for the Examiner's convenience.
