RATIONALE

Telecommunications networks represent one of the most significant investments in information technology being made by industry today. The implementation of these networks has far reaching impacts throughout the organisation. Network management impacts on the effective use of any telecommunications network resource and as such is vital to the configuration and operation of the network. Students with an in depth understanding of the management issues associated with telecommunications networks will be able to design and implement more effective networks which will then be able to be easily controlled and expanded.

SYNOPSIS

This course expands on the knowledge gained in previous courses relating to telecommunications networks. In particular it looks at network management considerations which affect the design process and the impacts of managing the resulting networks. The course will explore network management through an examination of current network management technologies and methods, current network implementations, and networking standards. Networks will be examined from a practical business viewpoint with case studies highlighting issues important to businesses and the development of appropriate networking solutions.

OBJECTIVES

The course objectives define the student learning outcomes for a course. The assessment item(s) that may be used to assess student achievement of an objective are shown in parentheses after each objective. On successful completion of this course, students should be able to:

1. an in-depth knowledge of the component activities in network management (Assignment, Examination)
2. interpretation of network management standards and related documents (Assignment, Examination)
3. the ability to develop network designs which incorporate network management requirements (Assignment, Examination)

4. development of procedures for network management practices within an organisation (Assignment, Examination)
5. an understanding of contemporary methods for network monitoring (Assignment, Examination)
6. the implementation of appropriate actions when monitoring reveals potential problems (Assignment, Examination).

- 6 Examination information:
This is a restricted examination. Candidates are allowed access to specific materials during the examination. The only materials that candidates may use in the examination for this course are (i) Writing materials: non-electronic and free from material which could give the student an unfair advantage in the examination; (ii) Translation dictionaries: with the Examiner's approval, candidates may, take an appropriate non-electronic translation dictionary into the examination.
