RATIONALE

The generalisation that environmental resources are scarce has led to the need for all countries to consider the objective of sustainable growth. Environmental economics explores a range of questions about the use of resources to achieve that objective. Students of business, government and society need to understand environmental and project appraisal economics so they can evaluate proposed projects and explore economic policies designed to achieve sustainable growth.

SYNOPSIS

This course develops principles of environmental economics and explores their use in the design of policies for sustainable growth. Both macro and microeconomic principles and their application are covered, as is the essence of the economic appraisal of projects. Both economic valuation techniques and market-based approaches are explored. General emphasis is placed upon the improvement of economic welfare through the application of economic principles in the search for sustainable growth.

OBJECTIVES

The course objectives define the student learning outcomes for a course. The assessment item/s that may be used to assess student achievement of an objective is/are shown in parentheses after each objective. On successful completion of this course, students should be able to:

1. explain the use of economic principles and policies in the achievement of sustainable growth (Assignment 1, Assignment 2, Examination)

2. explain the institutional and market dimensions of sustainable growth (Assignment 1, Assignment 2, Examination)
3. apply the technique of cost-benefit analysis in the appraisal of projects with environmental impacts (Assignment 1, Assignment 2, Examination)
4. critically appraise economic valuation principles and market-based instruments (Assignment 1, Assignment 2, Examination).
