RATIONALE

Understanding the learner, learner differences and needs underpins informed professional decision-making by educators irrespective of the age, culture, community, or life stage of the learner. Theories of learning and development offer insights into the behaviour and progress of individual learners, and provide a range of frameworks for analysing learning and development processes. Coupled with an understanding of how learning occurs and the relationship between physical and cognitive development, as well as understanding similarities and differences between learners, and the influence of the context within which the learner develops enables educators to make pedagogic decisions relevant to the teaching and learning environment.

SYNOPSIS

This course provides an introduction to the key concepts related to the understanding of learners and learning. The course focuses on several views of learning including behavioural, social cognitive, and constructivist theories and how the key understandings drawn from these theories can be applied in teaching and learning environments. Through this course pre-service educators are introduced to basic concepts and developmental issues connected to research and to the skills and strategies of observation necessary to apply these to an educational setting. The influence of the similarities and differences in both learners and learning environments will be explored in relation to effective educational practice. The course provides for a nominal 7.5 days of professional attachment to an identified school. During this period of attachment students will be immersed in the day to day operations of the school and in the work of a teacher, with a particular focus on the connections between that work and the issues covered in this course.

OBJECTIVES

The course objectives define the student learning outcomes for a course. The assessment item(s) that may be used to assess student achievement of an objective are shown in parenthesis. On completion of this course students will be able to:

1. demonstrate knowledge of social cognitive and constructivist views of learning and behavioural views of learning and developmental concepts (Assignment 1 and 2, Professional attachment)
2. demonstrate an awareness of the influence of individual difference and ecology on learning and development (Assignment 1- Part 2, Professional attachment)
3. systematically observe to develop an understanding of individual learners (Assignment 2 and Professional attachment)
4. relate relevant theories to effective teaching practice (Assignment 2 and Professional attachment)
5. demonstrate ways in which ICTs can assist in catering for a diverse range of learner characteristics (Assignment 2, Professional attachment)
6. demonstrate the application of the principles of quality teaching for diversity in a specific contexts (Assignment 2, Professional attachment)
7. demonstrate knowledge, understanding and skill in the use of appropriate personal, professional and academic literacies (Assignment 2, Professional attachment)
8. apply an understanding of learners and learning while in the professional attachment (Professional attachment)
9. articulate an example of how the key concepts encountered in this course can be applied in an educational setting (Assignment 2)
