RATIONALE

The registered nurse in a practitioner role is expected to undertake actions that meet the health care needs of individual patients/clients, their families and significant others at selected points of contact when an individual is presenting with an episode of illness. The role of the registered nurse requires both knowledge of expected illness patterns and knowledge of responses to therapeutic interventions to identify nursing actions which should be implemented independently or in collaboration with other health professionals. The conditions under study correlate with recognised priorities in Australian Health Care based on Burden of Disease studies. These areas will serve as a framework for the student to be able to plan and implement care for individuals and groups with biophysical and psychosocial needs both within and beyond the scope of this course and in a variety of contexts, complexities and settings.

SYNOPSIS

Students will focus on selected topics to learn a basis for nursing assessment and planning of care for individuals requiring health care in secondary and tertiary health care settings and in home care and community nursing. Students will propose care for individuals based on an understanding of the underlying disease pathology, the expected medical and pharmacological treatment, and the scope of independent and collaborative nursing practice. The student will learn how to help patients meet their needs through direct intervention, by teaching patients and family members to perform care, and by coordinating and collaborating with other professionals to provide required services. Case studies will be built around specific points of contact for the nurse with the patient/client. Critical thinking will be fostered to develop the ability of the student to adapt and apply concepts learned in this course to clinical situations and in subsequent courses within the BN program.

OBJECTIVES

On completion of this course students will be able to:

1. demonstrate in writing the planned nursing care for patients/clients seeking health care for a particular stage of their illness. (Assessment items 1,2,3)
2. Identify the appropriate scope of practice of the registered nurse in selected interventions with clients. (Assessment items 1, 2, 3, 4, 5)
3. Demonstrate professional communication in oral and written form. (Assessment items 1, 2, 3, 5)
4. Synthesise knowledge of: a) recognized nursing practice, b) the underlying principles of physiological responses, c) the impact of psychosocial influences, and d) the expected patient responses to therapeutic interventions. (Assessment items 1, 2, 3, 4, 5)
5. Adapt concepts from the presented clinical situations to patients/clients with other physical conditions and psychosocial contexts. (Assessment items 1, 2, 3, 4, 5)
