RATIONALE

Counsellor education at an advanced level requires a continued examination of issues introduced in previous studies and the development of clear conceptual and theoretical frameworks which underpin professional practice. Thus, this course introduces specific issues of therapeutic counselling and contains an intensive skill development and practice component which links to specific therapies. This approach is then embedded in counselling practice.

SYNOPSIS

The course covers the major issues of individual and group counselling, and group dynamics. Advanced counselling skills are introduced and practiced and the integration of conceptual frameworks with theory and micro-skills is facilitated through role play and group work. Students will be required to personalise their approach to counselling using techniques derived from a variety of therapies. This course emphasises both personal and professional self-exploration and development. Students will be required to practice in class and independently in the community.

OBJECTIVES

On completion of this course students will be able to:

1. demonstrate knowledge and understanding of a range of theoretical approaches to counselling issues.
2. demonstrate competence in advanced micro-counselling skills.
3. demonstrate a personal and professional knowledge of specific aspects of accepted counselling therapies in counselling practice.
4. demonstrate and justify their individual approach to counselling.
