RATIONALE

It is widely acknowledged that the expressive arts are both a vehicle for the expression of human feeling, and for human thought. The visual arts, music, movement, and the dramatic arts are disciplined forms of inquiry and expression through which children and adults organise feelings and ideas about experience. Music offers children a medium through which they can come to know themselves and others, their world and their relationship to this world, more intimately and effectively. Hence, music and drama education should provide children with the understandings and skills necessary for the articulation of thoughts, ideas and feelings. In order to use the arts expressively, children have to come to know the materials and symbols of their chosen media through active employment and mindfulness. To be expressive in music, movement and drama children must have command of the materials related to the medium. This places an emphasis on the child as a 'maker' which implies knowledge and control of the medium. Early childhood teachers play an important role in guiding children's learning and creativity, by assisting them in the manipulation and mastery of materials and techniques in music and drama.

SYNOPSIS

This course focuses on music and drama in early childhood. It provides students with the skills and knowledge necessary to guide children's creative development in the early years. It will examine how music and drama can be integrated into the early childhood classroom environment to foster the development of an understanding of the elements of music and drama, and an ability to apply this understanding to singing, playing of melodic and percussive instruments, improvisation and moving.
