OTHER REQUISITES

State law in Queensland (Australia) requires that all adults working/undertaking professional experience/researching with children under the age of 18, in the state of Queensland are required to possess a current suitability card (Blue Card). (See "Other Requirements" for further information.) Also see: <http://www.childcomm.qld.gov.au/employment/bluecard/informationSheets.html>.

RATIONALE

The advent of the 'information age', development of sophisticated communication technologies and increasing cultural diversity and spread of globalisation, place greater demands on us to develop more complex literacy capabilities in our personal, civic and working lives. As society embraces the lifelong learning concept, it is essential that all citizens are adequately prepared for effective participation in their workplaces and in their communities. Development of language, literacy and numeracy capability is fundamental to achieving this vision. Demands on workplaces to undergo change that enables them to reach and maintain high levels of productivity and remain competitive, have created an urgent need for a well-trained, highly competent workforce. Workers are increasingly asked to use a wider range of communication skills to perform workplace tasks where perhaps once language, literacy and numeracy were not an issue. Recognising that language and literacy underpin and influence performance of workplace and learning tasks and industry competencies, greater importance is being placed on understanding and addressing the language, literacy and numeracy demands in learning and in the workplace. Vocational teachers, workplace trainers and assessors are being asked to consider the language, literacy and numeracy requirements of their training programs, learning materials, assessment methodologies and teaching delivery. They are also being asked to consider the English language, literacy and numeracy skills of their learners. The capacity of vocational teachers, trainers and assessors to support the language, literacy and numeracy needs of learners often requires significant adjustments in learning facilitation strategies, specifically those relating to the focus on theory, instruction and repertoire of practices needed in the field.

SYNOPSIS

This course will explore an expanded definition of literacy in today's society; investigate aspects of literacy in relevant learning contexts; and then examine issues and practices related to language, literacy and numeracy and communication in teaching, learning, and work settings. The focus will be on providing teachers/trainers with the knowledge and skill to particularly plan for and support the language, literacy and numeracy needs of learners in vocational and workplace environments; implement workplace literacy audits; and develop effective strategies for teaching and assessment that considers the demands of language, literacy and numeracy. Students engage in online discussion forums that contribute to literacy learning and assessment.

OBJECTIVES

The course objectives define the student learning outcomes for a course. The assessment item(s) that may be used to assess student achievement of an objective are shown in parenthesis. On successful completion of this course students will be able to:

1. demonstrate an awareness of the current status of literacy skills of adults and the relationship between literacy capability and socio-economic factors (Assessments 1 and 2)
2. define key concepts in the area of literacy (Assessments 1 and 2)
3. understand the changing contexts for language and literacy use and demonstrate an awareness of the increasingly high levels of literacy competencies required in the workforce and in learning (Assessments 1 and 2)
4. analyse job-related skills together with identified literacy skills and demonstrate an awareness of the instructional implications of this (Assessments 2 and 3)
5. demonstrate a knowledge of a range of assessment procedures, select appropriate assessment procedures and interpret assessment responses related to target learners and specific workplace competencies and tasks (Assessments 2 and 3)
6. demonstrate a knowledge of a range of literacy support strategies and structure training programs which are appropriately responsive to the learning characteristics of either the adolescent learner or of the adult learner (Assessments 2 and 3)
7. evaluate the effectiveness of teaching/training programs and modify or restructure programs where necessary (Assessments 2 and 3)
8. demonstrate competence in and appropriate use of language and literacy, including spelling, grammar, punctuation and bibliographic referencing (Assessments 1, 2 and 3)
