RATIONALE

While education can be a very rewarding career, it is also complex, demanding and rapidly changing. For those contemplating education as a career, it is important to consider such questions as: What does it mean to be an educator in the 21st Century? Why do people choose education as a career? What do practising educators have to say about their work and lives? How might my identities be implicated in my development as an educator?

SYNOPSIS

While this course begins by examining the work of educators in the broader context of the world of work, its focus is on the work of educators in the 21st Century. Students undertaking this course will be required to engage in a process of critical analysis of the relationship of self to the professional work of educators. Intending students should be aware that they will require access to electronic resources including email and the Internet.

OBJECTIVES

The course objectives define the student learning outcomes for a course. The assessment item(s) that may be used to assess student achievement of an objective are shown in parenthesis. On successful completion of this course students will be able to:

1. demonstrate an understanding of how teaching is located in the broader context of the world of work (Assessments 1, 2 and 3)

2. demonstrate a developing understanding of the complex and demanding role of the educator in the 21st century (Assessments 1, 2 and 3)
3. demonstrate skills of critical self-analysis (Assessments 2 and 3)
4. demonstrate critical awareness of the relationship between personal self and professional educator and how this pertains to professional standards and ethics (Assessments 2 and 3)
5. demonstrate knowledge, understanding and application of correct communication skills including literacy, presentation and accurate referencing protocols. (Assessments 2 and 3)
