RATIONALE

Diverse clinical experience is a necessary educational component for student nurses so that they are adequately prepared for contemporary practice. Present-day nursing practice is situated within a variety of health-care settings and it is therefore important to familiarize students with a breadth of clinical experiences, which reflect such diversity. This course will give students the opportunity to plan, practice and evaluate care for individuals, families and communities whilst under the supervision of Health Care Professionals. This clinical course allows for a scaffolding of experiential skills and application of knowledge. The ANMC Competencies are a national regulatory framework to assist nurses to deliver safe and competent care. This course addresses the ANMC Competencies in practice and uses the ANMC Competency framework to assess practical skills. This clinical course facilitates the transfer of skills and knowledge gained in other courses into hands-on delivery of care in the diverse settings of Mental Health Care. Students will be expected to integrate pre and co-requisite theory, such as NUR 2200: Mental Health Nursing; NUR 2199: Clinical Practice AA: Situated Practice and NSC 2000 - Pharmacology to augment clinical knowledge and experience.

SYNOPSIS

It is expected that students will complete 160 hours of clinical practice and 8 hours of briefing/debriefing in a setting pertaining to the care of Mental Health clients. Student placements may include any setting where Mental Health clients are provided care and include rural and remote hospitals, tertiary hospitals, acute inpatient facilities within general hospital settings, community health care centres, correctional facilities, aged care facilities, drug rehabilitation centres. This course further develops the student nurse in relation to professional interactions with the health care team and patients in mental health settings. The aim is to further develop skills introduced in the first year of the program and to allow authentic practice of those skills covered in the theory course NUR2200 and the Situated Learning Course NUR2199. Strategies that the nurse can use to give holistic, culturally appropriate and effective care are developed and applied, guided by the Standards of Practice for Mental Health Nursing in Australia (ANZCMHN 1995) as a framework for decision making. Reflective practice is anticipated, using an Inquiry-based framework. This course allows the student to develop critical thinking and analysis in relation to evidence-based practice. It aims to allow practice in the conduct of comprehensive and systematic nursing assessment, as well as care planning and implementation at an introductory level. It allows the student to practice the establishment, maintenance and conclusion of therapeutic relationships.
