RATIONALE

This is the third course of the research component of the MVA and is designed to enable monitoring of progress. Students will continue to undertake independent research, under supervision, on a proposed topic in the development of an exploratory body of work that amalgamates theory and practice within their chosen field. The course culminates in a mid-course work-in-progress exhibition, performance or publication that demonstrates a maturing artistic, intellectual and critical rigour. Candidates through this research are expected to demonstrate substantial progress towards making a valuable contribution to their chosen field of practice. The concomitant development of a thorough literature review towards the dissertation component of the Master of Visual Arts course of study will be concerned with research in an area of relevance to the objectives of the studio practice proposal. Presentation of documentation-in-progress that contributes the data for the development of the dissertation will accompany the exhibition component of this course.

SYNOPSIS

This course will take the form of a mid-program review that includes the coherent presentation of a body of work in progress together with an oral presentation and written component. This mid-program review will enable critique of research progress and is concerned with the integration and application of specific aspects of theory and studio based research relevant to the chosen topic.

OBJECTIVES

On successful completion of this course students will be able to:

1. demonstrate significant progress on their chosen dissertation topic;
2. present a well developed body of artwork relevant to the dissertation topic;

3. present a thorough review of existing literature related to and contextualized with studio research for their chosen dissertation topic;
4. demonstrate an exploration of methodology of research appropriate to their chosen dissertation topic.
