RATIONALE

This course provides students with the opportunity to design, conduct and report a significant research project assessed by external examiners as warranting the award of the Doctor of Education qualification. It therefore requires students to demonstrate the capacity to integrate empirical, methodological and theoretical knowledge at an advanced level in ways that relate to and contribute to current professional knowledge and practices in contemporary educational settings.

SYNOPSIS

Full-time candidates should enrol in this course for each semester of the dissertation/folio component of the Doctor of Education program. This will normally be for a total of four semesters if two electives are included in the program pathway; if no electives are included in the program pathway, students will normally enrol in EDR9000 for one semester in lieu of the two electives. While individual students might complete the elements of this component of the program iteratively rather than sequentially, it is expected that the following elements will normally be completed by students working in close consultation with their supervisors: For students completing the dissertation " Writing and presenting a confirmation proposal " If appropriate, conducting a pilot or small-scale study " Collecting and analysing data " Writing successive versions of the chapters constituting the dissertation. For students completing the folio " Writing and presenting a confirmation proposal " Conducting and writing a formal research report " Writing an analytical thematic statement " Completing one or two other components as required for the folio.
