RATIONALE

In the learning communities of the 21st century the work of the teacher requires collaboration and cooperation in professional teams. Making contributions to the whole of operations within a dynamic professional community of learners and being active in the wider professional community, are defining characteristics of the nature of contemporary teachers' work. Effective relationships with students, fellow teachers, paraprofessionals, parents, interagency personnel and community resource people lie at the core of maximising the opportunities for all learners to reach their potential. The will and skill to effectively work constructively in collaborative ways are crucial elements in the repertoire of all teachers.

SYNOPSIS

This course will expose students to the important role of relationships between student and student, teacher and student, teacher and parents, teachers and their colleagues, teachers and paraprofessionals in optimising the conditions and opportunities for success in learning and development for all students. The skills, attitudes and behaviours that promote effective relationships and collaboration will be identified and practised. The potential contributions of community members and specialist professional staff to the effectiveness of teachers' work and students' learning in these complex times will be explored. . The course provides for a nominal 25 days of professional attachment to an identified school. NOTE: Minimum enrolment numbers apply to this offering. Should enrolments not reach the minimum number required for on-campus study, students may be transferred to the EXT or WEB offering and advised of this change before semester commences.

OBJECTIVES

The course objectives define the student learning outcomes for a course. The assessment item(s) that may be used to assess student achievement of an objective are shown in parenthesis. On completion of this course students will be able to:

1. demonstrate an understanding of how collaboration impacts on teacher roles and responsibilities in relation to students with diverse educational needs (Proposal, Case Study Report, Professional Attachment)
2. demonstrate a willingness and capacity to establish and maintain effective working relationships with students, parents and fellow staff in the attachment context (Professional Attachment)
3. demonstrate the application of collaboration skills in a variety of roles in the attachment context or in University-based tasks related to the course (Professional Attachment)
4. establish and maintain productive partnerships with parents and other staff in order to promote the quality of teaching and learning (Professional Attachment)
5. identify contexts where collaboration offers tangible advantages for service delivery, problem solving, or promotion of individual student learning (Case Study Report and Professional Attachment)
6. apply an understanding of relating and collaborating in the professional context (Proposal, Case Study Report and Professional Attachment)
7. apply principles of ethical and collegial practice to collaborative situations (Proposal, Case Study Report, Professional Attachment)
8. articulate an example of how the key concepts encountered in this course can be applied in an educational setting (Case Study Report)
9. demonstrate knowledge, understanding and skill in the use of appropriate personal, professional and academic literacies (Proposal and Case Study Report)
10. demonstrate knowledge, understanding and application of appropriate ICT uses for teaching and learning (Professional Attachment)
11. demonstrate competence in written language and scholarly writing including correct spelling, grammar, and bibliographic referencing. (Proposal, Case Study Report and Professional Attachment)
