SYNOPSIS

The law of civil wrongs, known as torts, sets the standards of behaviour between members of society. The aim of this course is to introduce students to the theoretical basis on which the law of tort in general has developed and, in particular, the tort of negligence. Students will gain an understanding of the circumstances in which an action for the tort of negligence may lie, the elements of the cause of action, the remedies available and possible defences to the action. Students will critically consider contentious current tort issues.

OBJECTIVES

On successful completion of the course, students should be able to:

1. understand the theoretical and historical basis on which the law of torts has developed (Assignment, Examination)
2. identify the various categories of tort - intentional, strict and negligence (Assignment, Examination)
3. apply general policies underlying the law of negligence in Australia in order to evaluate those laws, in particular for the topics considered in this course (Assignment, Examination)

4. locate and analyse primary law materials and secondary materials (as relevant) while critically reviewing an issue in law relevant to the topics considered in this course (Assignment, Examination)
5. explain the legal principles relevant to the topics considered in this course (Assignment, Examination)
6. apply such legal principles to given fact situations in order to determine the likely outcome to issues raised (Assignment, Examination)
