SYNOPSIS

This course is designed to allow current and/or prospective leaders in organisations to reflect on the nature of leadership and the development thereof in organisations, from theoretical as well as practical perspectives. Those enrolled in this course are challenged to apply analytical and critical thinking about what organisational leadership is all about and what concomitant challenges relate to developing the leadership capabilities of organisations. The focus is both on the leader and also on leadership. Relevant theoretical perspectives and developments are explored and those enrolled are then also challenged to consider the actual organisational implications and relevance of these. Relevance and implications at the level of the individual are also not neglected. The second half of the course specifically focuses on content, process and context aspects related to leader and leadership development. This course can be regarded as the foundation course for the Leadership specialisation offered at postgraduate level through the Faculty of Business.

OBJECTIVES

On completion of this course students will be able to:

1. analyse and critically discuss different theoretical perspectives of leadership and relate these to the challenges faced by the managerial leaders of modern day organisations (Assignment 1, Assignment 2)
2. analyse and critically discuss leadership competencies and their relation to leadership effectiveness and the success of twenty-first century organisations (Assignment 1, Assignment 2)

- analyse and critically discuss various issues regarding the processes and contextual variables related to leadership development and explain how to deal with the implications hereof in practice (Assignment 1, Assignment 2).
