RATIONALE

The development of specialised musical skill is the fundamental aim and objective of any music program. As an industry, a field of research and an art form, the diverse nature of the music profession necessitates clear specialisation within the three main areas of Performance, Composition and Musicology. In this course students will choose a specialisation under one of three available modules: Module A Classical or Jazz performance; Module B Composition (including Instrumental, Vocal and Electroacoustic composition) Module C Musicology.

SYNOPSIS

This course develops the musical specialisation of the student, both within groups and as an individual. Each succeeding course in Music Performance, Creation and Scholarship will require students to demonstrate a greater degree of conceptual and practical skill development. First semester Music Performance, Creation and Scholarship courses will focus on the preparation of a major technical assignment or exam. Second semester Music Performance, Creation and Scholarship courses will focus on the preparation of a major repertoire assignment or exam, usually taking the form of a public recital, composition folio or scholarly presentation.

OBJECTIVES

On completion of this course students will have:

1. advanced their standard of work within their chosen music specialisation (eg Performance, Composition, Musicology);
2. developed academic and professional skills by increasing their knowledge of the literature of music through the analysis and application of carefully selected works from the repertoire relevant to their chosen music specialisation;
3. developed a level of competence in technical facilities relevant to their chosen music specialisation;
4. demonstrated interpersonal and teamwork skills by collaborating with other musicians;

5. increased their confidence in presenting the public outcomes of their music specialisation;
6. demonstrated a critical understanding of the methods and techniques that underpin the public outcomes of music professionals and peers;
7. demonstrated written communication skills appropriate to the profession by submitting a reflective journal and seminar notes;
8. demonstrated innovative application of creative skills by composing a list of original works;
9. demonstrated management, planning and organisation skills by critically assessing their own and others' performance.
