SYNOPSIS

The central information challenge faced by organisations is how to get the most out of their information assets. As businesses become more complex and face an ever increasing number of regulatory requirements, the task of efficiently managing the growing volume of paper and electronic records becomes more difficult. Research shows this critical business information is expensive to collect, often unreliable, and increasingly out of control. Administrative managers need a sound knowledge of information management methods and technologies. This course provides for managers and their staff an overview of the scope and complexities of the management of records and information irrespective of format. Students completing the workshops involved in this course will receive a Certificate of Completion. Those students who have attended the course workshops and successfully completed the workshop assessment will also receive credit for MGT3200 Information Management offered by the Faculty of Business, USQ.

OBJECTIVES

The course objectives define the student learning outcomes for a course. The assessment item/s that may be used to assess student achievement of an objective is/are shown in parentheses after each objective. On successful completion of this course, students should be able to:

1. explain the organisational role of information management with a focus on records, document and archival management and differing views of the records life cycle (Assignment 1)
2. define and discuss the relationship between information management, corporate risk and corporate governance (Assignment 1)

3. discuss the importance of accountability, legal compliance and best practice in information management (Assignment 1)
4. describe the relationship between information management and the management of other organisational assets (Assignment 1)
5. explain the process of creation, capture and registration of organisational records (Assignment 2)
6. explain the process of control (classification and access) of organisational records (Assignment 2)
7. explain the importance and processes of records appraisal and disposal (Assignment 2)
8. critically evaluate a number of alternatives for records storage (Assignment 2)
9. define vital and archival records and their relationship to corporate risk and outline effective management processes for these types of records (Assignment 2)
10. define ERMS, explain the potential advantages of this type of system, and outline suggestions for managing the transition from paper to electronic records management systems (Assignment 2).
