

Building Pathways to Academic Success – Transitions

Building Pathways to Academic Success is a free orientation program available to USQ students that prepares you for your studies from the moment you commence. It is designed to introduce you to the study skills, techniques and tools you need to succeed academically. It will also give you insight into University student life and enable you to meet fellow students and staff members.

Who's it for?

Building Pathways to Academic Success is recommended for all students. It is especially beneficial if you:

- are a mature age learner
- have graduated high school with an OP between 10 and 19
- have been away from formal study for a considerable amount of time
- are an international student.

Fees

Participation in this program is free.
