

Professional Activities, 2001

From the Dean .....

The Faculty of Arts has sustained a commendable record in the production of research and scholarship in the form of books, chapters, refereed articles, and conference papers. These are formally recorded in the University's Annual Report.

This official record, however, represents only the tip of the iceberg of the Faculty's output. Beneath the surface lies the bulk of research, scholarly, and professional activities that make up the daily routine of most staff. These range from local or regional exhibitions, performances, and recordings, to conference presentations, adjudications, and consultancies, to diverse community service contributions, as well as those print outputs – such as reviews, reports, and some books/articles – that do not qualify for the tip of the iceberg. These activities provide not only the seedbed from which more substantial projects grow, but also the ongoing intellectual engagement necessary to university life.

As these fundamental activities are not recorded elsewhere, this report is my formal acknowledgement of the contribution that all staff make to the academic life of the Faculty. I congratulate staff on their level and range of research, scholarly, and professional activities. Keep up the good work!

Maurice French
Dean
Faculty of Arts

Foreword

It is heartening that the relevant government bodies and the University of Southern Queensland itself have now to come to more formally recognize “Major Original Creative Works” in their annual Research Data Collection exercises. This will provide an opportunity for research and scholarship outputs by colleagues in the performing and visual arts in our faculty to obtain the credit and notoriety they so aptly deserve for their work!

But, very frequently, colleagues in all of the Faculty's disciplines do not receive sufficient recognition and appreciation for all their research and scholarship activities and outcomes. This Report therefore recognizes those labours that otherwise would not be included in the more formal government and University processes. Faculty of Arts colleagues are to be commended for such achievements. These “bits-and-pieces” round-out an individual's profile of performance both as a professional and a person. They contribute to a stronger and healthier culture and community of scholarship at all levels in our Faculty---and often when other demands of the day have made it difficult to obtain such results!

Thanks for the important work you all have done in this regard, colleagues!

Don McMillen
Director of Research
Faculty of Arts
