SYNOPSIS
Teachers constantly have to make judgements about the proficiency levels of their students. With the present emphasis on the goals of second language teaching being more communicative, teachers have to develop skills beyond pen and paper tests to developing skills in oral and aural tests also. The present emphasis on outcomes-based education also emphasises the need for assessment. This course examines the current knowledge about second language testing. The course will introduce students to the different types of language tests and their purposes. It will look at how language proficiency is measured and the ways scores are interpreted. It will also discuss the criteria for good tests: reliability and validity. Students will have practice in devising their own tests in which they will demonstrate their understanding of the principles of second language testing.

OBJECTIVES
On successful completion of this course students will be able to:

- discuss different types of language tests and their purposes;
- describe different types of scales that are used in measurement;
- demonstrate their knowledge in scoring and interpreting test data;
- discuss the importance of reliability and validity in testing;
- demonstrate their understanding of test construction by developing tests of language proficiency.
