The thesis for the Master of Information Technology comprises the research and writing of a thesis (maximum of 40,000 words). Students examine a professional area of interest relating to information technology and are assisted by one or more supervisors with appropriate background. Each candidate for the thesis is required to submit a research proposal for approval and endorsement prior to the commencement of research. Topics are usually drawn from the candidate's experience and interest. This is the first of four courses comprising the MIT Dissertation.
