SYNOPSIS
Increasingly, feminist theory is examining the importance of gender in shaping the expectations and subjectivities of individuals. It is important that students of literature should be aware of varying literary responses to this issue. This course involves study of a range of literature and focuses on gender relationships as these are presented by writers reflecting and/or challenging the cultural values of their times. NOTE: Students who have already passed the old unit 97501 will not be permitted to enrol in this course.

OBJECTIVES
On successful completion of this course, students will:

- be able to critically respond to various literary representations of gender relationships;
- have an understanding of the cultural contexts of production and reception of the texts studied;
- be able to engage with current theoretical analyses of gender issues and apply them to the reading of literary texts.
