RATIONALE
This course has been designed to enable advanced management students to explore selected leading edge issues in the global business and organisational environments. The course will enable students to progress their reading and knowledge beyond the levels achieved in their previous post-graduate course-work studies. It would be expected that students elect to pursue issues which have close relationships to their anticipated respective doctoral dissertation topics. The course has been designed to give flexibility and freedom of choice to students, unconstrained by the syllabus boundaries of traditional postgraduate plan work courses.

SYNOPSIS
This is the first course of Contemporary Issues in Business and will considerably enhance students' knowledge in selected management areas. Through the submission of a series of critical essays, research and publication skills will be developed and sound foundations laid for completion of the applied doctoral dissertation. The first assessment normally focuses on an extensive literature review that would form the basis of a draft chapter in the dissertation. Students will be required to select the topic for the literature review to fit their research question in consultation with the course leader and then submit the assessment on time. Each essay will be reviewed by an appropriate supervising staff member in conjunction with the course leader.
OBJECTIVES
On successful completion of this course students will be able to:

- independently explore literature sources which may contribute to the selected issues;
- write critical literature reviews or the draft chapters of the dissertations;
- carry out designated revisions to submitted work;
- successfully utilise literature and other sources as a pre-requisite to the undertaking of a doctoral dissertation; and
- demonstrate an intimate knowledge of related contemporary issues in business administration and management.
