RATIONALE
Web publishing is a rapidly expanding and important industry. It can be considered as part of the computing industry, or the publishing industry, and it has extremely important implications in many other areas. USQ graduates in computing, and many other disciplines, need expertise in this area. This course will provide them with skills in document creation, publishing, and the more technical computer-oriented aspects of web publishing. The course will emphasise both the generation of web materials and the establishment and maintenance of the services required to support it.

SYNOPSIS
This course attempts to convey the essential skills and knowledge required to create and maintain high quality web documents and the sites where these are located. The course will cover document design and preparation, as well as the more technical issues of web-publishing such as CGI scripts, web site maintenance, and site security. Program material will be available via the web only. Practical classes will be provided for internal students. An email list-server will be used to facilitate email communication among students and between staff and students. Experience programming in the high level language "C" is recommended. Experience with using Linux/Unix is also recommended. This course is not offered at Wide Bay in even years.

OBJECTIVES
On completion of this course students will be able to:

1. show a basic understanding of document design and be able to formulate a logical design of a web site (Assignment 1, Exam);
2. show a basic understanding of graphics and how it is used in web publishing and web documents (Assignment 1, Exam);
3. fully exploit the features of HTML and Cascading Style Sheets (Assignments 1 and 2, Exam);
4. demonstrate understanding of the technical foundations of the Web (Assignment 2, Exam);
5. develop server and client software (Assignment 2, Exam);
6. establish, efficiently maintain and secure a web site (Assignment 2, Exam).
