RATIONALE
To know how language works, a student of second language teaching needs to understand the systematic nature of the language of communication by analysing discourse. The course emphasises how to describe discourse patterns in context for a range of language situations. It aims to show how coherent communication occurs in both spoken and written forms, and how listeners and readers interpret the messages they receive taking into account pragmatic and linguistic contexts.

SYNOPSIS
This course looks at the nature of discourse from a Pragmatics perspective taking account social, psychological and linguistic aspects of discourse. Conversations and oral interaction among first language speakers and between native and non-native speakers of English in classroom and community contexts will be analysed as part of studying how goals of communication are achieved. The role of speech act theory and communication constraints in the effective processing of spoken text, and of discourse features and markers in coherent written texts will be examined as a means of understanding the nature of spoken and written discourse. Students will have the opportunity to study a specific cultural setting or language community and review theory in the field of pragmatics relevant to their setting.
OBJECTIVES

The course objectives define the student learning outcomes for a course. The assessment item(s) that may be used to assess student achievement of an objective are shown in parenthesis. On successful completion of this course students will be able to demonstrate:

1. knowledge of system constraints on communication and awareness of the cultural and social influences on communication; (Journal 1; Transcript and 2000 Word Text)
2. analysis of speech acts and speech events in the context of communication; (Journal 1; Transcript and 2000 Word Text)
3. ability to identify elements of classroom or community discourse from students' own transcribed sample; (Journal 1; Transcript and 2000 Word Text)
4. ability to examine the structure of information and coherence in discourse and to analyse discourse markers in oral and written texts locating issues for second language writers; (Journal 2; One 2000 Word Text Analysis)
5. analyse an aspect of discourse in classroom or community interaction from a Pragmatic viewpoint. (Journal 3; One 2500 Word Project)
