RATIONALE
The purpose of this course is to enable students to recognise inequalities in the health states of individuals, families or groups within a community and to plan collaboratively with these individuals or groups to have equal access to affordable health services, appropriate to their needs.

SYNOPSIS
This course explores the Primary Health Care role of nurses as independent practitioners and as participants in multidisciplinary and intersectoral practice. Students assess communities in urban, rural, and remote contexts. Strengths, limitations, and strategies for change are identified through appraisal of these communities. Collaborative findings form the basis of a student-designed research proposal, which supports the notions of empowerment, social justice, and equity for all people.

OBJECTIVES
On successful completion of this course students will be able to:

1. identify the roles of hospital and community health nurses in the delivery of primary health care (Community Develop Program, Environmental Study);
2. integrate the philosophy and principles of Primary Health Care into clinical practice in urban, rural and remote areas (Community Develop Program, Environmental Study);
3. perform a rapid community appraisal to identify strengths and limitations in a community and plan collaboratively to meet needs identified by community (Community Develop Program);
4. apply principles of Primary Health Care to create and maintain healthy environments (Environmental Study).
